Harvard Business School '13

Every year millions of students graduate from college, but less than 60% feel ready to take on the corporate world. Talerang began as a research project at Harvard Business School and we aim to solve the employability crisis in India through our work-readiness programs. It has impacted over 2 million students over the past 5 years through our associations with colleges, schools, 250+ corporate partners and the United Nations Development Program. My vision is to get 20 million graduate students work-ready by 2020 through our unique, selective and experiential work-readiness curriculum!

“Talerang has helped me grow as a working professional. It is exciting for me to be a part of its selective program as I see an opportunity to enhance my skills even further.”
